How to use this guide

Events are listed in date and time order. On the left you will find the Faculty/Department responsible for organising the event. On the right we list the event title, date and time, venue, speaker(s) and a short description if available.

Booking

The events are free to attend and open to all members of the university unless otherwise stated. Some events have limited capacity and advance booking is advisable you will find booking details where applicable. The event information in this guide was correct at the time of going to press, but may be subject to change. Please check the online version of the almanac found at www.wlv.ac.uk/almanac and the event webpages where available.

On the rare occasion that an event is rescheduled or cancelled, changes to a booking made via Eventbrite will be communicated through Eventbrite.

The Almanac is compiled and designed by:

Public Lecture

Public Lecture at Stafford: Sweat and Snakebites

Wednesday 3rd October 2018, 18:00 – 20:00

University of Wolverhampton in Stafford, 2A Staffordshire Place, Tipping Street, Stafford, ST16 2LP.

Speaker: Mark O'Shea

Mark O'Shea has been fascinated by snakes from an early age, and kept his first pet snake when he was about eight years old. This is an account of how this Wolverhampton born and bred snake enthusiast turned his hobby into his profession, becoming an internationally respected snake expert, the author of six books, Curator of Reptiles at West Midlands Safari Park, a television presenter with his own series of Animal Planet and Channel 4, and, more recently, Professor of Herpetology at the University of Wolverhampton.

Along the way Mark has carried out fieldwork or made documentary films in almost 50 countries on every continent except Antarctica. But this, more than five-decades long, journey has not all been plain sailing, because along the way there were some serious snakebites, attempted hijackings, near drownings, and other close encounters with man, beast and nature.

Mark is presenting a series public lectures and at all of them Mark plans to have copies of his most recently published title, a detailed study of 600 of the world's 3,700+ living snake species, almost one in six of all known snakes.

Public Lecture

Public Lecture at Telford: Sweat and Snakebites

Thursday 4th October 2018, 18:00 – 20:00,

University Centre Telford, Level 3 Southwater, Southwater Square, Telford, TF3 4JG.

Speaker: Mark O'Shea

Another chance to catch Mark's lecture on 'Sweat and Snakebites' at his appearance in Telford. As at the Stafford public lecture the day before copies will be available of his most recently published title, a detailed study of 600 of the world's 3,700+ living snake species, almost one in six of all known snakes. Each species is illustrated life-size, with a smaller image of the entire snake, and easily accessible details of their distribution, venom, diet, reproduction, conservation status, and other fascinating facts. At 656 pages this is a mighty tome and an ideal Christmas or birthday gift for any reptile enthusiast. Mark will be signing and selling copies after the lectures.

FEHW Sport

Sport Psychology

Friday 5th October 2018, 9am - 11am, Room TBC.

Dr Tracey Devonport and Danielle Brown MBE

Please book a place through FEHWevents@wlv.ac.uk

As a Double Paralympic gold medallist Danielle Brown MBE will provide an informed perspective on the role of sport psychology in her elite career and the place of sport and exercise in adapting to an acquired disability.

Taking up archery on her fifteenth birthday was the first step on a journey that saw Danielle power to Paralympic glory. She spent her entire international career as world number 1, winning gold in two consecutive Paralympic Games and three World Championships. She also accomplished something that very few disabled athletes manage when she transitioned onto the able-bodied team.

Danielle now works as a professional speaker, mentor and coach.

Dr Tracey Devonport joins Danielle to relate Danielle's experiences and interpretations of them to the relevant sports psychology theory and literature.

Between Interdisciplinarity and the Expanded Field

Contact: FoArtsResearch@wlv.ac.uk

BETWEEN

INTERDISCIPLINARITY AND THE EXPANDED FIELD

POST GRADUATE RESEARCH CONFERENCE
8th October 2018

How do creative researchers draw on imagery, philosophies, theories and methodologies from other disciplines?

Interdisciplinarity may be defined as connectivity between disciplines in all conceivable forms. The prefix 'inter' meaning between, can be distinguished from multi-disciplinarity, suggesting many or multiple. Interdisciplinary researchers position their work at the intersection of disciplines. These relationships inform research practice.

Between Interdisciplinarity and the Expanded Field is an informal and supportive forum for creative researchers to explore opportunities and challenges associated with working between disciplines. It's a place to experiment, to test new ideas and theories, and to discover creative new approaches and methodologies for research and practice.

A diverse programme includes films, performance, storytelling, psychological exercises, and experimental art through quantum physics. We will hear about the liminal spaces of the Black Country as sites of abjection and terror. We experience petite perceptions in sound and vision through immersive sculpture. We explore the corpus linguistics of 'fashion crimes'. And we will discuss political ideology and mindfulness through an interactive experiment. Essentially this conference celebrates the undiscovered, unknown and the unexpected, finding answers in the least likely of places.

Mobiles and Modernity – how digital technology changes everything

Wednesday 17th October 2018, 17:00 – 19:00, Chancellor’s Hall, MA Building

Speaker:- Professor John Traxler

Book via <https://www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/university-of-wolverhampton-lecture-by-professor-john-traxler-tickets-38398323419>

Since the turn of the century, we have seen mobile technologies evolve from being expensive, fragile, scarce, puny and difficult to being powerful, ubiquitous, pervasive, easy, cheap and robust. In this time and in every part of the world, they have changed the nature of the commodities, assets, transactions and organisation that constitute our economic lives; have challenged the certainties of political issues, affiliations and processes. There are clearly different interpretations of their impact from merely a technical aspect of the otherwise unchanged realities of the modern world to a symptom of a slide into the fragmented, subjective, suspicious and transient world of post-modernity which this lecture will explore.

John Traxler is Professor of Digital Learning in the Institute of Education at the University of Wolverhampton. He is one of the pioneers of mobile learning, associated with projects since m-learning in 2001, the first major EU project. He is Founding Director of the International Association for Mobile Learning, responsible for the annual international mLearn research conference running since 2002. He is co-editor of the definitive book, Mobile Learning: A Handbook for Educators and Trainers, and four others, plus papers, articles and chapters on all aspects of learning with mobiles and their wider impact on society. He has supported and advised UNESCO, UNRWA, USAID and ITU, and worked on projects funded by LSC, JISC, British Council, EU, IDRC and DFID in Europe, the Middle East, Sub Saharan Africa, Latin America and South Asia.

Inspiring the Next Generation – Our Black Role Models in the Community

Contact Ethnic Minority Council. Email: cdp@ethnicminoritycouncil.org

An all-inclusive free conference celebrating current and historical black role models. Speakers will share their experiences of living in today’s society, the challenges they face and how they overcome them. We want you to share your views and ideas about how you have been inspired by influential role models and how we can inspire others.

With keynote speakers and community representatives we aim to create and inspire the next generation to become role models, whilst debating the importance of role models in our community. Speakers and attendees will discuss their personal paths to success, and the role models who have influenced them. The topics for discussion will be:

Black Business Network – Responsibility of Wolverhampton’s Black Business in Inspiring Others - This discussion will explore the ways in which the Black Business Network has inspired people across the Black Country. We will discuss the ways that you can get involved in this network and hear people’s experiences of working within the Black Business Network.

Family focus: It takes a village to raise a child - This discussion will bring participants together to discuss the challenges they face and aim to form a larger network and family. We will explore how to speak to children about important issues and highlight the importance of community when raising a child.

Successful Black Role Models - This workshop will celebrate the history of successful black role models from Wolverhampton and Britain, with tips for staying motivated in difficult times. Discover how participants can get involved with Black History Month and other activism events across the Black Country.

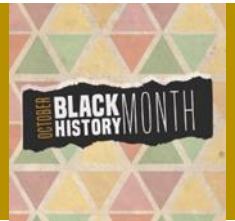

Workshop for Young People - For young people attending the conference, a game has been set up where they can identify and match black role models to the work they are involved in. This will conclude with a discussion where participants discuss their own personal role models.

University of Wolverhampton Inaugural Lecture: 'Where I am now, I didn't imagine I could be'

Thursday 18th October 2018, 17:00 – 18:00, MH001, Mary Seacole Building

Professor Laura Caulfield

For bookings: Please email s.thorne3@wlv.ac.uk

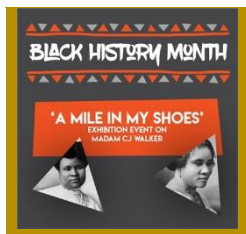

Laura Caulfield is Professor and Founding Chair of the Institute for Community Research and Development at the University of Wolverhampton. She has held academic and leadership positions at the Universities of Leicester, Loughborough, Birmingham City, and Bath Spa. Laura has a background as a psychologist and criminologist and she is currently leading research projects for the Ministry of Justice and the Irene Taylor Trust. Her work focuses primarily on rehabilitation in criminal justice and the needs of women in the criminal justice system. Laura has significant leadership experience and is an expert in research design, qualitative and quantitative methods. Her latest book, 'Criminological Skills and Research for Beginners' was published in April 2018. Laura's work has considerable influence on both policy and practice. For example, in November 2016 she was invited to give evidence at the House of Lords to the All Party Parliamentary Group (APPG) on the arts, health and wellbeing

About the lecture:

Arts-based interventions have a long and complex history of work within the justice system. From fine art, to drama, creative writing and poetry, dance, to music – the art forms are many and varied. The arts have provided an alternative or complimentary component to rehabilitation, and there is significant evidence that participation in the arts has a positive impact: increasing confidence and social skills; promoting engagement with education and treatment programmes; improving attitudes and behaviours; and a positive impact on well-being. While much useful and insightful research has been produced on the role of the arts in criminal justice, the evidence base has been subject to criticism. For example, the focus of much research in this area has been based on self-reported measures, there has been a lack of robust quantitative data, and it is rare to see evaluations that use pre-test and post-test scores. This lecture will explore the history and role of the arts in rehabilitation, discuss current research and criticisms of the existing evidence base, and propose new and robust approaches towards understanding the impact of the arts on rehabilitation in the criminal justice system.

Part 1: Formulating your Research Methodology

"What's your methodological approach?", "Where's the methodology explained?", "Describe your methodology in a couple of sentences..." These questions can strike fear into the heart of any doctoral researcher - but its' most probably the first thing that will be asked at your Viva Voce. Part one of our symposium will discuss how you can develop or refine your research methodology, how to explain what it is and where this should go in the thesis, and how to use the methodology to structure your thesis.

Part 2: The importance of establishing an online presence for Doctoral Researchers

You might be conducting path-breaking research, but who apart from your supervisors is aware? Your time as a doctoral researcher offers a unique opportunity to establish yourself, and your work, through online platforms. This can help to disseminate your work, make useful connections with other researchers around the world, add nuance and timeliness to your research, garner invites to conferences and events, and significantly enhance your career prospects. Part two of our symposium will look at how to go about doing this, including a "beginners" demonstration in how to use WordPress.

WLV Big Read Seminar – Gail Honeyman

Thursday 25th October, 2018, 11:20 – 13:30, in Harrison Library, Ambika Paul Building.

The Process of Writing a Novel

Bookings via <https://www.eventbrite.co.uk/e/university-of-wolverhampton-big-read-an-audience-with-gail-honeyman-tickets-50727938630>

Award winning author, Gail Honeyman, is visiting the University as part of the Big Read campaign.

Gail, who won Costa Book of the Year 2017 with her debut novel, Eleanor Oliphant is Completely Fine, will be talking to staff, students and visitors about the process of writing the novel and discussing some of the key themes addressed in her book.

Students studying for Faculty of Science and Engineering courses were sent a copy of Gail's book as part of the Big Read campaign – an initiative created by Kingston University as a way of making students feel welcome.

Nazira Karodia, Dean of the Faculty of Science & Engineering at the University of Wolverhampton, said: "The WLV Big Read is part of a wider, national initiative to help students feel part of the University community as quickly as possible. The idea is that when new students join the University family, the book will help them to settle in quickly and give them something in common with the people they meet when they arrive."

Black History Month Open Public Lecture – Dr Karen Salt
Thursday 25th October, 2018, 12:30 – 14:00, in Room MH002.
The Unfinished Revolution: Haiti, Black Sovereignty and Power in the Nineteenth-Century Atlantic World
No booking required. For further information please contact Dr Richard Hawkins, Department of History, Politics & War Studies at r.a.hawkins@wlv.ac.uk or Dr Shirin Housee at s.housee@wlv.ac.uk.

Dr Karen Salt from the Centre for Research in Race and Rights at the University of Nottingham, a leading expert in race and rights will visit the University of Wolverhampton to present a lecture to mark Black History Month.

The lecture will be chaired by Dr Shirin Housee, Senior Lecturer and Course Leader for Sociology at Wolverhampton, and author of Speaking Out against Racism in the University Space (2018).

She said: “We are delighted to welcome Dr Salt to the University of Wolverhampton to present the Faculty of Social Sciences’ Black History Month lecture.

“In this lecture Dr Salt will examine the charged upheaval that Haiti’s arrival caused in the Atlantic world. She will reflect on the ways that brokers from Haiti and across the Atlantic responded to the political existence of a nation forged from the fires of revolution and consistently racialized as black by other nation-states.”

West Midlands Legal Doctoral Network (WMLDN)
Wednesday 31st October 2018, at Aston University
Inaugural Event : ‘The Impact of Brexit’
For more information contact Professor Peter Walton P.A.Walton@wlv.ac.uk

Wolverhampton Law School (WLS) has recently participated in the formation of the West Midlands Legal Doctoral Network (WMLDN). As a founding member WLS encourages its PhD students to expand their professional and research networks through a series of events and training sessions, organised jointly with Aston University and Birmingham City University. The first, inaugural event, will be held at Aston University on 31 October 2018 ("The Impact of Brexit"), with the following two events in late January 2019 (held at BCU) and around Easter 2019, to be organised and hosted by WLS.

Given the current numbers of PhD students at WLS, WMLDN is a welcome expansion to our PhD students' opportunity to present and discuss their research, current developments and their progression. Additionally, WMLDN offers the tools for further innovative techniques to accompany current Doctoral Training. Finally, WMLDN is already in negotiations for its expansion, to include further partner Universities from the region.

Faculty of Arts Exhibition: 'Criminal Quilts Exhibition'

November 2018 to February 2019

The Gallery, MX Building Entrance

For more information contact Professor Fiona Hackney, F.Hackney@wlv.ac.uk

The Criminal Quilts exhibition will be on show November 2018 - February 2019 in the gallery: MX building entrance. Over the past year, independent artist Ruth Singer has been working with Fashion & Textiles Design and MA Design & Decorative Arts staff and students on her Arts Council-funded project Criminal Quilts, which combines archive research and contemporary practice with public engagement and work with volunteers.

Early in the new year the University will stage a Symposium entitled 'Curious Things' that is linked to the exhibition. The symposium will bring together academics, archivists, artists and designers to share, collaborate, and celebrate work which brings these three disciplines together. As an artist-led symposium, the event will include hands-on creative activities as well as talks and provide a forum for sharing ideas and good practice, evaluating impact, and developing joint projects.

'Curious Things' is developed and hosted by Professor Fiona Hackney with independent artist Ruth Singer (pictured left) and members of staff from the Material & Theoretical Practice research group in the Faculty of Art. The symposium will take place across two days: week 14th January or week of 21st January 2019 tbc. Both events will be open to the public, staff and students at University of Wolverhampton.

Public Lecture – In conversation with The Editor of the New Statesman

Thursday 1st November 2018, 17:30, Venue TBC

Speaker: Jason Cowley, Editor of The New Statesman

Contact George Kassimeris for more information at G.Kassimeris@wlv.ac.uk

George Kassimeris, Professor in Security Studies, University of Wolverhampton, in conversation with Jason Cowley.

"A one-to-one conversation about everyone and everything with arguably one of the most brilliant editors in Britain today." (Professor Kassimeris)

Jason Cowley is a journalist, magazine editor and writer. He was voted Editor of the Year - Politics and Current Affairs for the third time at the British Society of Magazine Editors awards in 2017.

The discussion will cover the political and cultural transformations of the last decade – from the fall of Gordon Brown and the rise of Jeremy Corbyn and the radical left, to the financial crisis and Brexit. The conversation will also draw on Jason's wide experience in the media and his encounters with personalities and literary figures from around the world. He has met and interviewed nearly all the major political players of the day, from Tony Blair, Jeremy Corbyn, and Nigel Farage to David Cameron, George Osborne, Boris Johnson and Theresa May. As a former editor of Granta literary magazine and the Observer Sports Monthly he has met leading authors such as John le Carré, Kazuo Ishiguro and Ian McEwan and had access to sports personalities such as Gareth Southgate, Tiger Woods and Arsene Wenger.

Further information

After the event, Jason Cowley will be signing copies of his new book "Reaching for Utopia: Making Sense of an Age of Upheaval" at the discounted price of £8. Please bring exact change.

The event is sponsored by the Centre for Historical Research, Faculty of Social Sciences.

FoA Philosophy

Royal Institute of Philosophy Lecture - Illusions of Immortality

Thursday 1st November 2018, 18:00- 19:30 (Tea/Coffee from 17:30)

Room MK045 (George Wallis Building). No Booking necessary.

Professor Jonardon Ganeri, Professor of Philosophy (New York University, Abu Dhabi)

This talk will first define and then look at responses to the illusion of immortality in two thinkers widely separated in time and space: the 5th century Sri Lankan Theravāda Buddhist Buddhaghosa, and the 20th century Portuguese poet Fernando Pessoa. As we will see there are some profound and surprising affinities between these two thinkers, and each can be read in a way that helps to illuminate the thought of the other. Putting these two thinkers into conversation with one another will provide the basis to explore some of the most fundamental questions about human existence: about the metaphysics of life and death, the phenomenology and moral significance of dying, and the epistemology of absence.

Jonardon Ganeri has research interests in self, attention, consciousness, the epistemology of inquiry, the idea of philosophy as a practice and its relationship with literature, early modernity in South Asia, intellectual affinities between India, Greece and China, and Buddhist philosophy of mind. He advocates an expanded role for cross-cultural methodologies in philosophical research, together with enhanced cultural diversity in the philosophical curriculum. He is a Fellow of the British Academy, recipient of the 2015 Infosys Prize in the Humanities, and named one of India's "50 Open Minds", 2016. His numerous publications include: The Lost Age of Reason: Philosophy in Early Modern India 1450-1700 (OUP, 2011); Identity as Reasoned Choice (Continuum, 2012); The Self: Naturalism, Consciousness, and the First-Person Stance (OUP, 2012); The Concealed Art of The Soul (OUP, 2013); and Attention, Not Self (OUP, 2018).

15 Years of the Enterprise Act 2002 Insolvency Reforms: Reflection and thoughts on future reform

Thursday 15th November 2018, Conference Aston in Birmingham city centre

Event: Various speakers

For more information contact Professor Peter Walton: P.A.Walton@wlv.ac.uk

Aston University and the University of Wolverhampton will be hosting a free one day conference at Conference Aston in Birmingham city centre. The event will reflect on the impact of the Enterprise Act 2002 reforms on UK insolvency proceedings and also consider the potential for further reform. The organisers are delighted to be joined by, amongst others, Andrew Tate (former President of R3), Professor Andrew Keay, University of Leeds, Professor David Milman, Lancaster University, Associate Professor David Brown, Adelaide University who will be presenting papers.

Autumn 2018 marks 15 years since the Enterprise Act 2002 introduced significant reforms to the insolvency regime in the UK. Much has changed in this period, including the introduction of out-of-court appointments of administrators leading to the emergence of pre-pack administrations, the growth of bankruptcy tourism, the operation of the prescribed part, changes in how insolvency litigation is funded, an expansion of the directors' disqualification regime and more recently the widespread media attention being given to the use of CVAs in the retail sector. Whilst there have been numerous consultations and some reforms since, the current framework is very much shaped by the Enterprise Act 2002 reforms. The conference will look at various aspects of the Enterprise Act including its passage through Parliament and will also include consideration of possible future reforms most recently articulated by the Government's response to its Insolvency and Corporate Governance Consultation.

Leadership and Mentoring – Dr Jenni Jones and Dr John Phillips MBE

Thursday 15th November 2018, 18:00 – 20:30, MH002 Mary Seacole Building

Please book via the CMI website

Questions about this event should be addressed to CMI events at CMIEvents@managers.org.uk or by telephone on 01536 207485.

John and Jenni will be exploring the world of leadership and mentoring; from both a practitioner and academic point of view. They will be sharing their leadership and mentoring experiences with a particular emphasis on the hugely successful University Student Mentoring programme, which they have worked on together, over the last 8 years.

They will share highs, lows and funny moments with a view to demonstrate how a little investment in this valuable intervention can help make a huge difference. They can prove that mentoring builds the knowledge, skills and behaviours needed to be an effective leader into the future.

Agenda

6.00pm: Refreshments & networking - The Forum, Lord Swraj Paul Building, University of Wolverhampton Business School

7.00pm: Introductions and presentation of CMI Rosebowl Award - Lecture Theatre, Mary Seacole Building (adjacent to Business School)

7.10pm: Lecture by Dr Jenni Jones and Dr John Phillips MBE

8.30pm: Event concludes

Dr Jenni Jones is a Senior Lecturer in the HR and Leadership Department at the University of Wolverhampton Business School. She is the Course Leader for their PGCert and MA in Coaching and Mentoring programmes and has published various articles on mentoring in the NHS, the Police and within Higher Education. Together with John Phillips from the Institute of Directors, she has led the Business School mentoring programme for 8 years. She is also an active coach and mentor within and outside the University.

Dr John Phillips MBE retired in 2016 as Regional Director for the Institute of Directors in the West Midlands although he continues to serve as a volunteer. He was the first person to be employed by IoD outside of London in 1993, setting a trend with the organisation now having a UK wide physical presence. Having been a school governor for many years John has maintained a strong enthusiasm for business education partnerships. In 2010, with the help of Dr Jenni Jones, he set up a mentoring programme for final year business students at the University of Wolverhampton. John and Jenni continue to develop and run the programme in close partnership. Their work involving one to one mentoring from experienced directors concentrates on employability, soft skills and building confidence. It has thus far proven to be very successful with many students quickly securing quality work after graduating.

Origins and Endings: Being Human Festival

Wednesday 21st November 2018, 19:30 – 21:00, The Black Country Living Museum

Snidge Scruppin': Mapping Smell and Memory in the Black Country

For more info: <https://beinghumanfestival.org/event/snidge-scrumpin-mapping-smell-and-memory-22-november/>

Led by the School of Advanced Study, University of London, in partnership with the Arts & Humanities Research Council and the British Academy, Being Human is a national forum for public engagement with humanities research. The festival highlights the ways in which the humanities can inspire and enrich our everyday lives, help us to understand ourselves, our relationships with others, and the challenges we face in a changing world.

Smell is unique because it has the special capacity to take us right back to our childhood. Snidge Scruppin' maps the specific smells that belong to the Black Country, from Banks's brewery's hoppy stink to groaty pudding to spicy curry. In Black Country dialect, 'Snidge' means 'nose' and 'Scruppin' is 'foraging'. Our events build on research into the Proust Phenomenon, which suggests that odours can reactivate emotive memories. We invite locals to take part in an interactive psychological experiment that collects Black Country smells and tastes that trigger different memories. Participants will be exposed to a number of different smells, and be asked to retrieve and describe memories, and then rate these on various dimensions. Snidge Scruppin' will demonstrate the importance of the smell and taste for our sense of regional history, and shows how place shapes us. The project will draw up the lost odours belonging to this post-industrial region whilst charting a new 21st century palate.

London, the capital of England and the United Kingdom, is a 21st-century city with history stretching back to Roman times. At its centre stand the imposing Houses of Parliament, the iconic 'Big Ben' clock tower and Westminster Abbey, site of British monarch coronations. Across the Thames River, the London Eye observation wheel provides panoramic views of the South Bank cultural complex, and the entire city.

Contact: George Kassimeris for more information at G.Kassimeris@wlv.ac.uk

Edith will give a talk on her magnificent new book Aristotle's Way: How ancient wisdom can change your life (London: The Bodley Head, 2018).

Her original specialism was ancient Greek literature, but she enjoys putting the pleasure as well as the rigour into all aspects of ancient Greek and Roman history, society, and thought. She has published more than twenty books, broadcasts frequently on radio and television, works as consultant with professional theatres, lectures all over the world, and publishes widely in academic and mainstream journals and newspapers.

She is a world leader in the study of ethnicity, class and gender in ancient sources, of ancient theatre, and of the continuing instrumentality of ancient ideas in world culture since the Renaissance.

Edith has held posts at Cambridge, Oxford, Durham, Reading and Royal Holloway, and visiting positions at Notre Dame, Swarthmore, Northwestern, Leiden, and Erfurt, and we are delighted to welcome her to speak at Wolverhampton.

Asking and Interpreting Research Questions

Research questions are at the core of research: whether explicit or not, they direct and define any research enquiry. It is therefore essential to understand the nature of research questions, and how research questions can be constructed and interpreted to construct and conduct your own research.

A STEAM'ed Christmas Lecture

Friday 7th December 2018, Arena Theatre.

Schools Only Matinee 13:00 – 14:30 and Public Performance 18:00 – 19:30

Tickets: wlv.ticketsolve.com/shows

The poster is green with white and gold text. It features a silhouette of a group of people at the bottom. There are images of a Christmas card and a Christmas tree. The text includes the University of Wolverhampton logo, 'Part of the Wolverhampton Lecture Series', 'The Doctoral College in collaboration with Faculties from across the University of Wolverhampton', 'Present.....', 'A STEAM'ed CHRISTMAS LECTURE SHOW TIMES', 'Friday 7th December 2018', 'Schools Only: 13.00 - 14.30', 'Public Matinee: 18.00 - 19.30', 'Book in advance at the Arena Theatre, Wolverhampton', 'wlv.ticketsolve.com/shows', 'Box office (01902) 321 321', and 'Tickets: FREE'. Logos for ASPIRE, National Collaborative Outreach Programme, and ARENA THEATRE WOLVERHAMPTON are at the bottom.

Building on the success of last year's STEAM'ed lecture the Doctoral College proudly presents a second instalment of educationally stimulating, festive fun. This year's performance is based around the centenary of the end of the First World War, providing ample creative opportunities for history and the arts to weigh-in with relevant contextual detail.

In addition, the STEAM'ed nature of the lecture sees the return of Prof Khechara and the science team for more wacky slapstick science. Pic from last year's event below.

International Conference on Construction Futures (ICCF)

Wednesday 19th and Tuesday 20th December 2018, City Campus

Various speakers

For more information visit website or contact Dr Ezekiel Chinyio (E.Chinyio@wlv.ac.uk)

The construction sector around the globe is transforming through its exploitation of emerging technologies and use of increasing amounts of digital data. Aligned with this is the need for a more sustainable built environment for the future, which is leading researchers, practitioners and policy makers to develop a wide range of innovative future looking solutions. The broad spectrum of the conference will allow researchers and practitioners to ‘future gaze’ into the construction industry.

The built environment impacts on human interactions and welfare. Likewise humans impact on how the built environment evolves. Engineering and other disciplines influence how the built environment evolves while environmental psychology interprets human behaviours and their impacts on the built environment. Psychology in Construction (Psycon) evolved in 2016 as an initiative to work on this and allied issues.

Faculty of Arts: Curious Things Symposium

Date TBC, w/c 14th January or 21st January, 2019 over two days

Professor Ludmilla Kostova and Dr Yarmila Daskalova

For more information contact Professor Fiona Hackney at F.Hackney@wlv.ac.uk

'Curious Things' is developed and hosted by Professor Fiona Hackney with independent artist Ruth Singer and members of staff from the Material & Theoretical Practice research group in the Faculty of Art. The symposium will take place across two days: week 14th January or week of 21st January 2019 tbc. Both events will be open to the public, staff and students at University of Wolverhampton.

The symposium will bring together academics, archivists, artists and designers to share, collaborate, and celebrate work which brings these three disciplines together. As an artist-led symposium, the event will include hands-on creative activities as well as talks and provide a forum for sharing ideas and good practice, evaluating impact, and developing joint projects.

The Symposium is linked to the exhibition 'Criminal Quilts' that is on show from November 2018 - February 2019 in the gallery: MX building entrance. The exhibition is the result of collaboration between independent artist Ruth Singer and Fashion & Textiles Design and MA Design & Decorative Arts staff and students working on her Arts Council-funded project Criminal Quilts, which combines archive research and contemporary practice with public engagement and work with volunteers.

Cambridge University's colleges contain the great architectural treasures of Cambridge. Founded by kings, queens, bishops, nobles, guilds and rich widows, they attracted large amounts of money. Such wealth allowed the colleges to use the best architects to create beautiful buildings that perfectly reflect 700 years of British architectural heritage.

Liverpool is best known as the home of the Beatles and is also famous for its two premier football clubs, Liverpool and Everton – you can tour both stadia for a behind-the-scenes view of the ‘beautiful game.’ But there is much more: Liverpool is a city with a wealth of places to visit. It has got more listed (ie. protected) buildings than any other city outside London and the city centre is a World Heritage Site.

About the Researcher Development Framework (RDF)

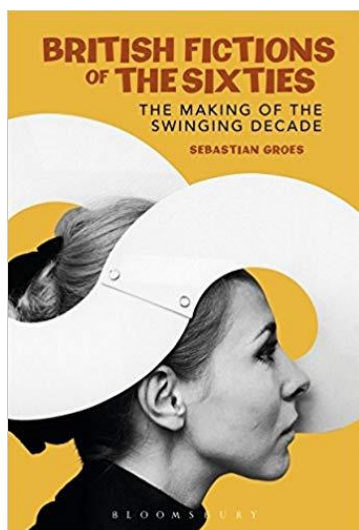

The Researcher Development Statement (RDS) sets out the knowledge, behaviours and attributes of effective and highly skilled researchers appropriate for a wide range of careers. The RDS is for policy makers and research organisations which provide personal, professional and career development for researchers in higher education. The Researcher Development Statement is derived from the Researcher Development Framework (RDF), a major new approach to researcher development, which aims to enhance our capacity to build the UK workforce, develop world-class researchers and build our research base.

The University of Wolverhampton subscribes to the Vitae Research Development Framework. The RDF is structured in four domains encompassing the knowledge, intellectual abilities, techniques and professional standards to do research, as well as the personal qualities, knowledge and skills to work with others and ensure the wider impact of research. Within each of the domains are three sub-domains and associated descriptors, which describe different aspects of being a researcher.

For more information on the Researcher Development Framework and associated Statement go to www.vitae.ac.uk/rdf
